Text for the Sale of a Slave

Rav Yehudah decreed that the following text should be used for the sale of a slave. “Our slave (that we are dealing with) is clearly a slave; he is totally separate from freedom and from any problem or complaint from the king and queen (not wanted for a crime of capital punishment). Nobody else has put his sign (of ownership) on this slave (currently, besides for the seller). He is free from any blemish and from any boils for the last two years, both old and new.”

The Gemora asks: What is the remedy for these boils?

Abaye answers: Ginger, the residue from silver (when it is mined from the ground), tar, wine vinegar, olive oil, and white naphtha. Apply the mixture with a feather of a goose. (86a1)

Mishnah

There are three types of gittin that are invalid. However, if the woman already remarried and had children after receiving it, the child is legitimate (not a mamzer). If he wrote the Get in his own handwriting without witnesses; if there are witnesses but no date; or, if there is a date and only one witness; in all of these cases, the Get is invalid. However, if she remarried (based upon this Get) the child is legitimate. Rabbi Elozar says: Even if there are no witnesses signed on the Get, but he gave it before two witnesses, the get is valid. She can also use the Get to collect from property with a lien on it, as witnesses are only supposed to sign on a Get (according to Rabbi Elozar) to benefit the public. (86a1 – 86a2)

Are There Other Cases?

The Gemora asks: Are there no more cases like these listed in the Mishnah? What about the case of an old Get (see 79b)?

The Gemora answers: In the case of an old Get, she does not have to leave her new husband, while in these cases, she does.

The Gemora asks: This is understandable according to the opinion here that she indeed must leave her new husband. However, according to the opinion here that she is not required to leave her new husband, why is an old Get different than those listed here?

The Gemora answers: There, she can initially remarry, while here, her marriage is only permitted after the fact.

The Gemora asks: What about the case of a bald Get (see 81b)?

The Gemora answers: In that case, the child is indeed a mamzer, while in these cases, he is not.

The Gemora asks: This is understandable according to Rabbi Meir (who holds the child is a mamzer). However, what is the reason according to the Chachamim?

The Gemora answers: In that case she must leave her husband, while here, she does not have to.

The Gemora asks: This is understandable according to the opinion here that she does not have to leave her new husband. However, according to the opinion here that she is required to leave her new husband, why is an old Get different than those listed here?

The Gemora answers: The Mishnah was not discussing tied gittin.

The Gemora asks: What about a Get that was not written for the correct kingdom (see 79b)?

The Gemora answers: In that case she must leave her husband, while here, she does not have to.

The Gemora asks: This is understandable according to the opinion here that she does not have to leave her new husband. However, according to the opinion here that she is required to leave her new husband, why is an old Get different than those listed here?

The Gemora answers: The Mishnah there is according to Rabbi Meir, and there the child is a mamzer, while here, the child is legitimate.

The Gemora asks: When the Gemora made a point of stating that there are three of these cases both in the beginning of the Mishnah and at the end, what was it excluding?

The Gemora answers: Saying specifically “three” in the beginning of the Mishnah excludes the cases that were brought up in the Gemora. The mention of “three” at the end of the Mishnah excludes the following case: The braisa states: If someone brought a Get from overseas and they gave it to the woman without saying, “It was written and signed before me,” the woman must leave her new husband and the resulting child is a mamzer. This is the opinion of Rabbi Meir. The Chachamim say: The child is not a mamzer. What should he do? He should take the Get back from her, and give it to her in front of two people while saying, “It was written and signed before me.” (86a2 – 86a4)

His Handwriting

The Mishnah had stated: If he wrote the Get in his own handwriting without witnesses, the Get is invalid.

Rav said: We learned, “His handwriting.” What was Rav discussing when he said this? If he was talking about the first part of our Mishnah, this is obvious, as this is what it says! He must be talking about the middle case. However, this can also not be, as there are witnesses in this case (and therefore it doesn't matter who wrote it)! He therefore must be discussing the last case, where the date is written, but there is only one witness. He is teaching that only because it is his handwriting and there is one witness is the child valid. However, the law is inapplicable if the Get is written in the handwriting of a scribe. Shmuel argues that even in this case the child would be legitimate, as the Mishnah (87a) says that this case is valid.

The Gemora asks: How does Rav answer this point?

Rav answers: Are the two cases comparable? The Mishnah there teaches us that she may initially remarry (as the scribe signed with the witness). Our case, the get is only valid after the fact.

The Gemora asks: How does Shmuel understand the case of the Mishnah (as he obviously understands the scribe did not sign with the witness)?

The Gemora answers: Shmuel understands that the case of the Mishnah (87a) is regarding a known scribe, who would not have written the Get unless the husband instructed him to do so. Our case is when the scribe is not such an expert (but even so the child is legitimate).

Rabbi Yochanan made a similar statement to that made by Rav. Rabbi Elozar asked him: Aren't there witnesses (he thought he was discussing the middle case of the Mishnah)! Rabbi Yochanan answered: I am talking about the last case. (86a4 – 86b1)

She is Required to Leave

Sometimes Rav would say about the cases in our Mishnah that the woman is obligated to leave her husband, but sometimes he would say that she is not. How could this be? If she already had children from the second marriage, she is not required to leave. If she didn't, she should leave.

Mar Zutra asked a question from a Mishnah (in Yevamos 30b). The Mishnah states: All of these (who potentially fall to yibum) that had a doubtful kiddushin or Get, they submit to chalitzah and not yibum. What is a doubtful kiddushin? If a man threw to her a kiddushin (money or a document), and it was uncertain if it was close to her or to him. What is a doubtful Get? If he wrote the Get in his own handwriting without witnesses; if there are witnesses but no date; or, if there is a date and only one witness; in all of these cases, the Get is doubtful. If you say that she does is not required to leave her husband if she has children, he co-wife will end up doing yibum! [*By the fact that we allow the ervah to remain with her second husband, this will prove to people that the get from the brother was a valid one; accordingly, her co-wife was not a co-wife of an ervah, and she will marry the yavam! This, however, would be forbidden, and because of this, we should decree that the divorcee should be required to leave her husband even if she has children from him!?*]

The Gemora answers: Let her do yibum and there is no problem, as this (*the prohibition for her to marry the *yavam) is only a Rabbinical suspicion.

Levi says: She does not have to leave her husband (in the cases of our Mishnah, even if they did not have children). This is also the opinion of Rabbi Yochanan. Rabbi Yochanan also said this to the sons of Rabbi Chalafta from Huna: Your father said, "She never has to leave." He also said that a kartzis in sheaths of grain that falls into water used for the red heifer does not make the water unfit. What is a kartzis? Abaye said: It is a big fly that is found in sheaths of grain.

Rav Daniel, the son of Rav Katina, asked from a braisa: All birds make the water of the red heifer unfit besides for a pigeon, because it sips. If a kartzis does not make the water unfit, it should say "besides for a pigeon and a kartzis!"

The Gemora answers: It is not such a clear rule, as while a large kartzis does not disqualify it, a small kartzis does. What is the size of a small one? Rabbi Yirmiyah, and some say Rabbi Ami, says: A small one is until the size of an olive. (86b1 – 86b3)

Ruling

The Mishnah had stated: Rabbi Elozar says: Even if there are no witnesses signed on the Get, but he gave it before two witnesses, the get is valid. She can also use the Get to collect from property with a lien on it, as witnesses are only supposed to sign on a Get (according to Rabbi Elozar) to benefit the public.

Rav Yehudah says in the name of Rav: The law follows Rabbi Elozar concerning gittin. When I said this before Shmuel, Shmuel said: It also follows his opinion in cases of documents.

The Gemora asks: Does Rav hold that it does not follow Rabbi Elozar regarding documents? Doesn't Rabbi Elozar also say a law that one can collect using the Get from property with a lien?

The Gemora answers: While Rabbi Elozar agrees that this ruling is valid regarding gittin, he argues that the law does not follow Rabbi Elozar's carrying the law over to documents as well.

Rabbi Yaakov bar Idi said in the name of Rabbi Yehoshua ben Levi: The law follows Rabbi Elozar in gittin. Rabbi Yannai said: There is not even a scent of a Get.

The Gemora asks: Does this mean that Rabbi Yannai argues on Rabbi Elozar?

The Gemora answers: He means that according to the Chachamim who argue on Rabbi Elozar, there is not even a scent of a Get from this Get.

Rabbi Yosi the son of Rabbi Chanina similarly said in the name of Rish Lakish: The law follows Rabbi Elozar regarding gittin. Rabbi Yochanan said: There is not even a scent of a Get.

The Gemora asks: Does this mean that Rabbi Yochanan argues on Rabbi Elozar?

The Gemora answers: He means that according to the Chachamim who argue on Rabbi Elozar, there is not even a scent of a Get from this Get.

Rabbi Aba bar Zavda sent to Mari bar Mar: Ask Rav Huna if the law follows Rabbi Elozar regarding gittin. In the meantime, Rav Huna died. Rabbah, his son, said that his father used to say in the name of Rava that the law indeed followed Rabbi Elozar regarding gittin. Our Rabbinical experts in halachah said this as well, in the name of Rav. This was stated explicitly by Rav Chama bar Gurya in the name of Rav. Some say that they said that our friends who are experts in halachah and are students of Rav say in his name that the law follows Rabbi Elozar regarding gittin. When Ravin came from Eretz Yisroel, he said this in the name of Rabbi Elozar in the name of Rav. (86b3)

Mishnah

If two people sent two similar gittin (with the same names) to be given, and they got mixed up on the way, both gittin should be given to both women. Therefore, if one of the gittin was lost, the second is also ineffective. If five people wrote a general Get and the Get specified that "So-and-so is divorcing So-and-so, and So-and-so is divorcing So-and-so, etc." and the witnesses are signed underneath, the Get is valid and it should be given to each woman. If the body of the Get was written for each separately and the witnesses signed underneath, the Get of whoever has witnesses that are read with the Get is valid (will be explained in the Gemora). (86b4)

Who is the Author?

The Gemora asks: Who is the author of this Mishnah?

Rabbi Yirmiyah answers: This is not Rabbi Elozar. Being that Rabbi Elozar holds that witnesses of the giving of the Get cause it to be valid, this Get cannot be valid. This is because there are too many gittin happening in one document for the witnesses to know who the giving of the document to the messenger is for, and the giving must be lishmah.

Abaye says: This is incorrect. Although Rabbi Elozar holds that the writing of the Get must be done lishmah, he does not necessarily hold that the giving of the Get must be done lishmah. (86b4)

DAILY MASHAL

One of the followers of R' Aharon of Karlin complained constantly that his wife demeaned him and made his life miserable. Finally, when he appeared to have reached his "limit," the Rebbe gave him a brachah. When he arrived home, all was well – no nagging or criticizing. The man was overjoyed. However, the next day, a wagon-driver started yelling at him on the street, and the next day, a strange woman accused him of bad behavior. When he came to Karlin next, the Rebbe asked him: "Wasn't it better to get all your Bizyonos at home, in private?"

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS FROM YESTERDAY'S DAF to refresh your memory

Q: What is the halachah if the husband divorces his wife and says, "You are permitted to everyone besides the kiddushin of a minor" and why?

A: It is invalid because a minor is considered someone with whom it is possible to eventually have kiddushin, and therefore he is still retaining rights to her.

Q: Why has the master not said anything when he said to his slavewoman, "You are free to marry any man you wish"?

A: Because she is still mortgaged to her master with respect of work.

Q: Why should we instruct the scribe to write "v'dein" with a yud?

A: For otherwise, it would seem that he is divorcing her only if he is required to by law.
